

1. A patient with a known, severe allergy to penicillin is mistakenly prescribed amoxicillin. The nurse recognizes the medication on the chart, immediately calls the physician, and requests a change in the prescription to prevent a life threatening anaphylactic reaction. The nurse's swift action is primarily an adherence to which ethical principle?

- A. Accountability
- B. Justice
- C. Beneficence
- D. Non-maleficence

2. In a community clinic with limited resources, a nurse is responsible for scheduling flu vaccinations. The nurse decides to allocate the first available vaccines based on highest need and risk, prioritizing the elderly, immunocompromised patients, and essential healthcare workers before offering them to the general healthy population. Which ethical principle is the nurse applying to ensure a fair distribution of the limited resource?

- A. Autonomy
- B. Veracity
- C. Accountability
- D. Justice

3. A pediatric nurse notices a 5-year-old patient is refusing to take their prescribed oral medication due to its bitter taste. The nurse mixes the medication with applesauce, a method known to be palatable and safe for the patient, ensuring the child receives the necessary therapeutic dose. This action primarily demonstrates the nurse's commitment to:

- A. Veracity
- B. Autonomy
- C. Beneficence
- D. Accountability

4. A 45-year-old patient who is fully competent and oriented has been told they need a blood transfusion. The patient, based on their religious beliefs, clearly states, I understand the risks of refusing, but I do not consent to receiving blood. Which ethical principle requires the nurse to honor the patient's decision, even if the healthcare team believes it will lead to a negative outcome?

- A. Beneficence
- B. Fidelity
- C. Justice
- D. Autonomy

5. A patient suffers a skin tear because the nurse failed to properly lift and reposition them using the required safe patient-handling equipment. After discovering the error, the nurse immediately reports the incident to the charge nurse, documents the event accurately in the medical record, and personally apologizes to the patient. Which ethical principle is the nurse primarily demonstrating through this willingness to admit and address the mistake?

- A. Confidentiality
- B. Veracity
- C. Fidelity
- D. Accountability

6. During a lunch break, a nurse overhears a nursing assistant discussing a celebrity patient's recent surgery details and diagnosis with another healthcare worker in the hospital cafeteria, where visitors are also present. The nurse immediately intervenes and reminds the nursing assistant that patient information should not be discussed in public areas. The nurse's action is aimed at protecting which ethical principle?

- A. Veracity
- B. Justice
- C. Confidentiality
- D. Accountability

7. A nurse has promised a patient they will return in 15 minutes to help them walk to the bathroom. Despite the call light going off on another patient unit and a colleague asking for quick assistance, the nurse returns exactly as promised to assist the original patient, fulfilling the commitment made. Which ethical principle is the nurse demonstrating?

- A. Accountability
- B. Non-maleficence
- C. Beneficence

D. Fidelity

8. A 52-year-old patient asks the nurse, Does this new chemotherapy I'm starting have a chance of curing my cancer The nurse knows the patient's prognosis is poor, with an expected 3-6 months to live, and the goal of treatment is purely palliative. Despite the discomfort, the nurse responds, The goal of this specific treatment is to slow the progression of the disease and improve your quality of life, but your oncologist is the best person to discuss the details of your long term prognosis. Which ethical principle is the nurse prioritizing?

A. Fidelity

B. Confidentiality

C. Veracity

D. Autonomy