

1. Which conflict resolution outcome is generally considered the most desirable for long-term relationships and is achieved through collaboration and integrative bargaining?

- A. Win-Lose
- B. Lose-Lose
- C. Win-Win
- D. Compromise

2. A charge nurse creates the weekly patient assignment roster, ensuring each nurse has an equitable workload, specific times are allocated for medication administration, and breaks are scheduled to ensure mandatory staffing levels are maintained. This highly detailed, routine, and short-term planning is an example of:

- A. Operational Planning
- B. Strategic Planning
- C. Contingency Planning
- D. Tactical Planning

3. A hospital's Human Resources department is actively recruiting new graduate nurses, conducting interviews, and designing a mandatory six-week orientation program that covers clinical skills and hospital policies. These are key activities of which management function?

- A. Controlling
- B. Directing
- C. Planning
- D. Staffing

4 The nursing unit needs to revise its policy on patient pain assessment documentation. The charge nurse forms a task force with nurses from all shifts, asking them to review the current evidence and draft a new, collaborative policy before bringing it back to the whole unit for a vote. Which leadership style is being used?

- A. Autocratic
- B. Democratic
- C. Transactional
- D. Laissez-faire

5. The charge nurse for the emergency department develops a new duty roster that groups nurses into specialized teams (triage, fast track, resuscitation) for each shift, clearly outlining their specific reporting lines and allocating the necessary equipment to each area. Which function is the charge nurse focusing on?

- A. Staffing
- B. Directing
- C. Controlling
- D. Organizing

7. A manager uses their formal authority to impose a decision on a disagreement between two team members. This is most likely to result in which conflict outcome for the team member who opposed the decision?

- A. Win-Win
- B. Lose-Lose
- C. Win-Lose
- D. Mutual gain

8. During a particularly busy night shift, a staff nurse is resolving a minor conflict between two nursing assistants regarding their patient assignments. She provides encouragement to a fatigued team member and clearly communicates a new emergency protocol from the physician. These are all examples of the nurse utilizing the function of:

- A. Controlling
- B. Staffing
- C. Organizing
- D. Directing (Leading)

9. Two board members, Mr. Smith and Ms. Jones, have a serious disagreement on the strategic direction of the company. Instead of having a difficult meeting, they both avoid the topic in subsequent meetings, hoping the issue will resolve itself or be forgotten. A year later, the company has stagnated due to the lack of a clear strategy. What is the outcome of their avoidance?

- A. Win-Win
- B. Lose-Lose
- C. Win-Lose
- D. Collaboration

10. Staff members in one of the public hospitals of Ethiopia, raised salary increment claim to the managers. The managers tried to convince the staff to continue their duties but the staff members resisted. At the end the managers organized a task force and discussed with the health staff and agreed to work their regular time in the hospital and part of their time in private clinics. Finally the conflict is resolved. What is the most likely conflict resolution strategy applied by the managers?

- a. Lose-lose
- b. Win-lose
- c. Lose- win
- d. Win-win

11. A head nurse clearly defines the required daily charting standards and promises a bonus incentive to any nurse who maintains a 100% compliance rate for a quarter. Conversely, those who consistently fail to meet the standard will receive written warnings. This approach is characteristic of which leadership style?

- A. Transactional
- B. Democratic
- C. Transformational
- D. Servant

12. The CEO of a regional hospital initiates a five-year plan focused on achieving international quality accreditation, expanding the hospital's specialized cardiac unit, and securing a major government grant for infrastructure development. This long-term, organization-wide plan is an example of which type of planning?

- A. Strategic Planning
- B. Tactical Planning
- C. Operational Planning
- D. Contingency Planning

13. A head nurse for a medical ward holds a meeting to establish a target of reducing patient fall rates by 10% over the next quarter. The team then drafts a detailed protocol for patient ambulation and safety checks to achieve this goal. This entire activity primarily represents which function of management?

- A. Planning.
- B. Controlling.
- C. Directing.
- D. Organizing

14. A nurse manager tells a group of highly experienced, specialized public health nurses, 'You know your communities best. Develop and implement your patient education schedule for the next month, and just let me know if you encounter any major administrative hurdles. Otherwise, you have full autonomy.' This is an example of which leadership style?

- A. Transactional
- B. Democratic
- C. Autocratic
- D. Laissez-faire

15. A Unit Manager is developing a one-year plan to implement the hospital's new strategic objective of becoming a paperless facility. Her plan includes budgeting for new unit-level computers, scheduling staff training sessions, and setting a firm three-month deadline for the digital switchover. This type of planning is known as:

- A. Tactical Planning
- B. Strategic Planning
- C. Operational Planning
- D. Policy Planning

16. A public health clinic manager decides to launch a new initiative to improve maternal care visits. According to the steps of planning, what is the very first action she must take?

- A. Set the specific goals and objectives for the program
- B. Implement the chosen course of action across all clinics.
- C. Identify all available alternative programs to run.
- D. Establish the budget assumptions and resource availability.